Costilla County

Home to the oldest continuously occupied town in Colorado (San Luis), Costilla County in south central Colorado is one the most picturesque areas of the State. Whether you are in to hiking, biking, fishing, and anything else outdoors, this area of Colorado offers a little bit of something for everyone.

Blanca, CO

Located on the western edge of Costilla County, Blanca is a small town with a few amenities. It is named after Blanca Peak, the fourth largest summit of the Rocky Mountains (14,351 feet). Known locally as an area for great elk hunting and alpine trout fishing. There are a few stores, a gas station, and an RV park. Whatever cannot be found in town can be found in nearby Alamosa.

Alamosa, CO

Located just 15 miles west of this property and in Alamosa County, is the much larger city of Alamosa, CO. With a population over 10,000, Alamosa has all of the amenities one would need. It has stores and restaurants (both local and national), large chain box stores, and over a dozen hotels. Aside from the wide array of outdoor activities, Alamosa also has local indoor options including live theater and plenty of other entertainment options.

Purchasing land is an investment and we are here to help you through that process. Government Land Sales, Inc. was started as an alternative investment tool to the traditional stock market, CD's, bonds, etc. Raw land is less susceptible to the ups and downs of the other investment markets. We believ...
